SCHOOL OF TECHNOLOGY. At a recent meeting of the Board of Trus tees of Richmond College, Hon. J. L. M. Curry, the president of the Board, offered a eries of resolutions, which, after forcibly pointing out the growing need of a great school of technology in the South, recomnded that steps be at once taken by the authorities of the college looking to the establishment, in connection with that institution, of the technical school to which the resolutions referred, and on a scale commensurate with the increasing demand among our Southern youth for a technica THE TIMES has on many occasions in th past dwelt at length on the assured success which would attend the operations of great technological school in the South, if it was put in the beginning on a firm and substantial basis. An institution of this char acter, with ample facilities for carrying out the work expected of it, would draw full support from the Southern States alone but with the increasing attention which the resources of this section are now attraction in every part of the Union, it is not impr bable that a very considerable number students, who would be looking to the South as the field of their professional career would also be drawn from the North. Richmond undoubtedly offers more n merous advantages than any other site which could be selected for a Southern school of technology. It stands at the vergateway to the most enormous and mos valuable mineral deposits in America. It is an old-established city, possessing every tition favorable to the local conve nience of such a school. Above all, We have a mechanical school here already, admira- pany, who shall be paid such compensation ble in its methods, and deserving of the very highest commendation for the work which it has already performed, which might well be made the nucleus of a second Stevens or Boston Institute. The Mechanics' Institute is, there is reason to think, better adapted to become the nucleus of a great school of technology peet of a snow-storm or a trace of snow on than Richmond College, because it is in a the pavements, the country to the west and situation to enlist the general interest of in many parts of the North has been blockevery Southern community. Excellent as aded. Richmond is blessed in every Richmond College is as an educational inetitution, it is, nevertheless, considere by the public to be at least traditionally a ment in support of the advisability of erectominational college, a college in which ing a handsome hotel here. The prevailing the influence of one church is thought to be sunshine has thrown new lighton the proparamount. This popular idea would fitableness of the step if once undertaken. necessarily detract from the sucwcheme to estaba great school of technology connection with it. Such a school should be as distinct from all denominational influences as the Stevens Institute in Hoboken, or as the Technological Institute in Boston. Indeed, in order to attain to the highest degree of success, it should stand entirely apart to itself. It should not even be associated with non-sectarian colleges to the extent of the scientific schools of Yale and Harvard. LATEST REVOLUTIONARY SCHEME. The Republican caucus has agreed to report to Congress a financial scheme for the Comments on Leading Topics Culled relief of the country from the embarrassments which they, by their reckless extravagance and really robber legislation. have been largely instrumental in effectdecided on it was also determined to instruct the Committee on Rules to prepare a closure rule providing for fixing a time for calling the previous question.

It is evident that in this lies a subtle scheme, very flimsily concealed. It is very significant that the closure rule is not to be presented to the Senate until after the bill for financial relief is regularly before that body. This is done to make it appear that the Democrats, if they discuss the rule so as to prevent its adoption, are delaying financial legislation, and so a point against financial legislation, and so a point agains them may be made. Then, if the Demo crats, to prevent this, shall not offer any obstacle to the closure rule, it will be very easy for a vote on the Force bill to be reached.

That the country needs the adoption of peals to the people. some financial plan to relieve the existing monetary stringency is generally admitted but if that relief is to be secured only or dition that the Force bill is passed, will the Democrats be justifiable in agreeing to it? That is the question with which the Demo cratic Senators will be confronted, and which they will have to answer. It will be very easy for the Republicans to obtain al the financial legislation they desire without any opposition from the Democratic side, and they know it. All they have to do is to at once, and positively, announce the abandonment of their pet infamy. If they will do this they will make capital for themselves from the country, because the voter have already declared in thunder tone their disapproval of the Force bill, and the Democrats being then relieved from the duty of doing all in their power to prevent that infamy from being consummated, car address themselves to the work of aiding the Republicans in undoing the damage which their past course has largely wrought,

Under these circumstances the country Under these circumstances the country will heartify appland the Democratic Service of Ser tors for not yielding an inch in their opposi. after the eld fashica.

With the exception of a few, proportionately less than in past years, the marriages have been among young people, the brides and grooms being not far apart in age, and both in their early youth. Almost invariably, too, the equality of fortune has been so great as to imply that pure romance, and not merely considerations of interest, brought about the matrimonial unions. These young people married, as young people generally marry, because they were very much in love after the old fashics. NEW YORK BUREAU RICHMOND DAILY TIMES, December 18, 1890, A farcial investigation was held to-day in the office of the Civil Service Board at the ustom-house. Captain William E. Pierce ing the war a Confederate soldier, was tried on a complaint made by Colonel Clarkson who took action as the G. A. R. commander of the Department of New York. It was contended that Captain Pierce had been and clothing from Union soldiers at Ander sonville and given them to Confeder ates, and then enjoyed "seeing the blanked Yankees shiver." The whole thing depended upon hearsay testi-mony, to the effect that one The Indian requires a firm but just and moderate control, with honest treament, and that cannot be obtained from political and underpaid agents. It can Frank Collier had heard Pierce make the statement referred to, but Collier himself wouldn't testify, and the Board has no wouldn't testify, and the Board has no power to issue subpenaes. Captain Pierce positively denied having ever made any such statement, and he also gave a brief sketch of his military career, declaring that he had never been at Andersonville, and had never been at Andersonville, and had never had charge of any prisoners. [Both Commissioner Roosevelt and Colonel Clarkson denounced the man Collier, but Clarkson still thought the man mught have told the truth.

The Louisville and Nashville has bough the Kentucky Central road, paying for it is bonds now in the company's tressury. The lawyers are arranging the papers, and pending their final signature by all in interess an official statement will not be given There will be no new Louisville and Nashville bonds or stocks issued. The company had been negotiating for this road about three years, but could not get it at a satisfactory price until now. The price is not stated, but is believed to be below par for the stock. The advantage of the fine to the Louisville and Nashville is in giving it a shorter cut by ninety-three miles into Cincinnati from Lexington and points directly south. It also gives the Louisville and Nashville another entrance into Cincinnati at the Grand Union depot. At present it enters only in the eastern part of the city, where it connects with the Pénnsylvania. The new entrance will connect it with all the other systems entering the city. The Louisville and Nashville is also pushing to connect with the Norfolk and Western system. It is expected to be completed and connection made by March 1st.

It is expected that there will be a sharp fight between the Pennsylvania Railroad Company on the one hand, and the Balttmore and Ohio and the Western Maryland's extension of its lines to connect the connect.

The Burmese Superior to All the Rest of the World.

The Burmese Suscriet to All the Rest of the World.

The interesting races of the world are not very numerous. If we separate a people intom its accidental surroundings, its past history of former artistic and literary actional characteristics of to-day, it will be generally found that the deluding glamour of interest which seems to invest and glorify it disappears and leaves a very common-place residuum behind.

Take, for example, the Italians. In spite of a wonderful past, illumined by genius and art, they are, the Neapolitans excepted, hopelessly uninteresting. The English, the Germans, Russians, Chinese, Hindus, Persians, and many other peoples who have had a large share in making the distory of the world, and whose energy and force, whose virtues and vices, it is impossible to forget or ignore, are sober and common-place. The Americans, who should have been an improvement on their historical ancestors and progenitors, are obviously a failure. The smaller European communities—Fortugal, Switzerland, Denmark, Belgium, and the rest—are destitute of a single scimulation of romance.

In Europe the French would seem to be the only race to which attaches a genuine diving, and universal interest; while in Asia the Japanese and the Burmese alone emerge from the slough of duliness and commonplace. To be interesting a people must have attained a high standard of civilization, although the manner and mode of this civilization differ as widely as that the country of the curvilization, although the manner and mode of this civilization differ as widely as that the country of the curvilization and the sound of the curvilization and the rest—are destitute of a single scimulation of romance.
